Stacy:

Hello! If your team does not feel comfortable sending that data, they are under no obligation to send it.

Date of Birth is useful for behind-the-scenes use only.

- Address/Phone/Email research
- De-duping records
- Ensuring Father/Son records are NOT marked as duplicates when Suffix is blank (this actually happened during a call yesterday)

A few things to clarify:

- Date of Birth never prints in the directory
- We generally do not collect this data (I would say never but I can't verify every project ever)
- If sending Year of Birth is acceptable, this is also helpful
- I have attached our security overview, if that is of any help.
- Again, if you do not wish to send, that is fine. Some clients do not even have this field.

Thank you very much for the question. We definitely understand! If we can be of any other help, please let us know.

Regards,
Stephen

Subject: DOB concern

We are in the process of pulling our data file with our IT team, and they had questions about why you request the date of birth. Since this is something you are not collecting, they are concerned that sending this information is sensitive in terms of potential identity theft and wanted to know the rationale behind sending it. I appreciate any insight you can provide.
